By offering a more environmentally friendly and energy efficient home, we contribute to a healthier living environment, where you can breathe better air and save money by consuming less resources. Our building practices give you a higher quality home.

As a recognized leader in green building, Mason Homes builds EnergyStar® qualified homes as a standard – not an upgrade – because at Mason we believe a happier, healthier home should be available to everyone. Improve your lifestyle with a Mason home and be Green for Life.

Green Neighbourhoods

We always strive to design our communities with ample parks and community resources nearby, so you'll drive less and play more. Mason Homes works with municipalities to promote better land use and walkable friendly streets. We preserve the existing landscape on our sites as much as possible and plant native species that require less care wherever we can.

Energy Efficiency

Save up to 30% on your energy bill with an EnergyStar qualified home, by reducing consumption through superior insulation, high-performance windows and high-efficiency heating and cooling systems. These are just a few of the superior standard features in a Mason home.

Indoor Air Quality

Mason Homes offers features such as high-quality air filters and heat recovery ventilation systems to improve your indoor air quality. Our enhanced construction methods help to minimize drafts and heat losses, and by using low-VOC paints, sealants and adhesives where we can, we help reduce chemical emissions in your home.

Water Conservation

Stop your hard-earned money from going down the drain by using efficient water systems – including low-flow faucets, showerheads and toilets – to lower your water bill. Optional upgrades like rain barrels can also further reduce water needs for added savings.

Resource Management

Mason Homes maximizes material use and minimizes waste, choosing components with longer lifecycles and recycling leftover material, whenever possible. This allows Mason to offer you a superior engineered home and better value.
